Lois Romer Is Named Winner Of Scholarship

Receives Award For Summer Season At Plymouth, Massachusetts

Lois Romer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Romer, 437 North Hardesty, has been awarded a scholarship for the 1942 season at the summer training base of the National Association of Dramatics, sponsoring the Plymouth Drama Festival at Priscilla Beach, Plymouth, Massachusetts. Lois will receive her Bachelor of Arts degree on June 4.

As a recipient of six weeks' training, Lois will be one of the group of forty young men and women who were selected from several hundred nation-wide applicants, as a result of evaluation based on dramatic background, personal endorsement and collegiate transcripts of record.

Most of Lois' work has been done under Mrs. Frances Feist, head of the dramatic art department. She has appeared in Jane Eyre, Romantic Young Lady, Craig's Wife, and Twelfth Night. She has also done radio work on "Footlights of the Air", an original radio script broadcast by young students.

WANTED...

Are you enthusiastic about "Pan-Americanism"? Well, here is where you can really do something about it.

Miss Dorothy Gallagher of Guadalupe Center has asked for Saint Teresa girls to do scouting or other recreational work among Kansas City's Mexican children during the summer vacation. There are two Girl Scout troops and a Brownie pack badly in need of leaders. Scouting experience is not required; a girl may do as much or as little as her time and interest permit.

If you would like to put in practice that Good Neighbor policy you have talked about during the school year, get in touch with Miss Gallagher or Sister Helen Angela for further details.

WHY SUMMER SCHOOL?

Keeping well abreast of the times, the College of Saint Teresa has announced a plan whereby students may attend summer school and complete their college course in three years. This will not be easy. Those long summer days of blissful idleness will be a thing of the past yet it is hoped that this will be the answer to many problems.

The country has need of Catholic college graduates, both to win the war and to safeguard the peace of the future. However, the present high standards of education must and will be preserved. A well-planned three year college course can train those students in a minimum of time without the sacrifice of a single credit hour.

Under such a plan, the college student realizes that she is where her country wants her to be . . . that she is doing the maximum work it expects of her. There is an added "life" in the knowledge that she has devoted her leisure time to preparation for the future, as have other Americans in every walk of life.

This plan will not seem attractive to some students. It is not expected to! It is an appeal to students, real students, who like to feel themselves part of America's war effort.

Katherine Maynes.

ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

Reviewing the Constitution of the Saint Teresa Alumnae Association, we find:

The object of this association shall be to draw into closer relationship the graduates of Saint Teresa's College and Academy and the faculty of the school, to stimulate loyalty and service to school and community of the Sisters of Saint Joseph, and to cooperate with all Catholic agencies in the development of Catholic education, Catholic literature, and Catholic social service.

Since this is the object of the Alumnae Association, what, then are the duties of its members? Passive membership is not sufficient; active participation and whole-hearted cooperation in every undertaking is essential if loyalty and zeal are to be maintained.

The alumnae have at their disposal several chapters, whose object it is to foster some phase of Catholic action. Membership in an existing chapter or the formation of a new chapter will keep graduates in closer connection with their Alma Mater.

In unity there is progress. The successful growth of any school depends largely on the maintenance of an active alumnae association. In this effort, therefore, alumnae members must be aware of their individual duty to accelerate the interests of their Alma Mater to the best of their abilities.

WHAT NOW?

Can this be it? Can this be the rosy future we always talked of when our thoughts turned to graduation? This scene we have before us — of disrupted lives, of boys marching away from homes of cheer, of newspapers with tragic headlines, of tri-motors roaring through the sky, of hatred for mankind, of bleakness, of futility—what is this scene?

We had always talked of going out from college portals to turn the world up-side-down with our new ideas and hopes and plans. Little did we know that radical leaders had already done that, and that our vocation lay in straightening out the tangle they had made.

Not just to straighten out the material jumble of filled camps and empty homes, of blazing guns and cold firesides, of roaring planes and silent graves. Our job is something bigger than that . . . something more fundamental.

No matter what our individual plans may be for the future, we all must pledge ourselves to help to calm this storm of hatred, to erase these prejudices, to allay the bitterness, to enkindle love and peace on earth.

A rosy future? It is still there! There in a tremendous and exquisite manner . . . there in a spiritual and mystical way . . . there full of hope and love so superabundant that it shall outglitter all the brightness of past glory and joy!

Lois Romer.

THEY PITY HER

My son was killed at war. They pitied me. They said: "She is all alone now."

Alone? Am I the first woman whose son has given his life? Alone? What of that other woman? Did not her Son give His life?

How little they know, those who pity me, those who say: "She is alone!"

I am united with the mothers of all days who have sacrificed . . . I am united with the greatest Mother of all . . . I have chosen my company well.

And still they say: "Pity her, for she is all alone."

Mary Hollinger.

WE WALK . . .

Walking, formerly called the great sport of the out-doors, has now become a necessity. Everywhere, if distance permits, you can see people of all walks of life, walking to school or to work. "Uncle Sam," through no fault of his own, has asked us to conserve on tires. Realizing, Uncle Sam's motive for doing this, people have gladly begun to take measures to help give a prolonged life to tires.

One of these measures is to walk instead of ride. This seemed ridiculous to workingmen. Why school children were the only people who walked anywhere! They were firmly resolved in their conviction. Finally, the dawn appeared. Why should not they do their part to aid "Uncle Sam"?

Rose Marie Carroll.

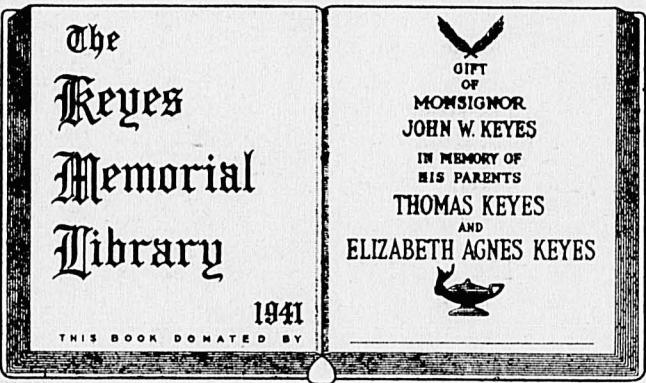

A Final Word

The last galley of proof lies corrected . . . a final "hole" in the dummy is filled . . . the three-deck headline is counted out to the letter . . . the May issue of The Teresian goes to press!

"Last" days are always a bit pathetic. The thrill of doing is over. Only the languid delight of remembering remains. Actually editing a school publication is really most fascinating, you know. There is the electrifying effect of a real scoop, and the complacent satisfaction of a newsy, alive paper. In short, there is the thrill of journalism!

One of the most sincere efforts of the Teresian was to give its readers the best that student journalism could offer. To cover all sources of news efficiently, to seek out human interest elements, to motivate effectively through editorial policies . . . each of these had its part in the paper's program.

Today, as this issue of the Teresian is circulated among its readers, the staff wishes to thank the faculty, friends, advertisers, students, and contributors for their generous cooperation during the past year. There is a vivid realization that the means for meeting the aims and policies can be improved, but there is also the realization that the assistance of each Teresian reader was an invaluable asset, which will never be supplanted.

Books

PLACES—Hilaire Belloc, Sheed and Ward, 1941, $3.00. Since the war has put an end to travelling, we cannot visit such places as Lisbon, Crakow, Rome, Carthage, Nazareth, Switzerland.

Nevertheless, we can make an imaginary journey with Mr. Belloc as a charming and interesting guide and companion, by curling up in our favorite easy chair and reading this book of essays.

SHADOWS ON THE DOWN AND OTHER POEMS—Alfred Noyes, Stokes, 1941, $2.50. Tinged with the grimness of war, the humor of war, the heartaches of war, the courage in war, children in war . . . is this book of poetry by Mr. Noyes, his first collection of verse in sixteen years. Each poem breathes a spirit of hope and faith and prayer. Between the lines is the "thumbs up" attitude of the English people.

OPEN LETTER TO A GUARDIAN ANGEL

Dear Angel of God:

Twenty-one years ago today you took on a full-time job. That was the day Bill was born. Our Bill! Yours and mine. Taking care of him certainly was a problem. Such a mischievous child, seeing how much trouble he could put you and me to. Yet we loved him all the more for it.

Remember when he was three and almost fell off the porch. You saved him. And then the time when he was ten he ran away from home, forgetting you were always by his side taking care of him. You guided him home.

And, oh, in high school . . . all the scraps he got into then. Many extra hours of worry I would have had had it not been for you.

Yes, angel dear, you have gotten Bill out of many rather precarious situations, and I thank you with all my heart. Now he needs your protection and guidance more than ever. Only an hour ago he became a buck private! Give him courage to face the trying days ahead. Keep him close to the hearts of Jesus and Mary.

And, if it be the holy will of God, bring back our Bill.

Lovingly,
Mom.

At Mission Hills

An issue of Vogue seemed to have been brought to life last Friday, at the Junior-Senior Prom held at Mission Hills Country Club. Lovely ladies in lovely gowns were the center of attraction!

Pat O'Donoghue, junior president, led the promenade in a dazzling white formal . . . Suited to the May tempo of Gregory's orchestra was Mary Margaret Fennesy's white pique with large red flowers to accentuate a circular skirt . . . Quintessence of daintiness was Patsy Bud-

Several characteristics, including dignity, cooperation, scholarship, service, poise, deportment, charm, Catholic action, etc., are requisites for the choice.

Awards for outstanding work in the physical education department will be made, as well as medals for excellent typing skill.

"The Avila" Receives Enthusiastic Applause

The Avila made its initial appearance at Saint Teresa's last week. The publication combines the yearbook and magazine themes, containing individual pictures of the seniors, group pictures of the other classes, views of the campus, and literary contributions.

Dedication of The Avila is made appropriately to Our Lady, Queen of Peace. A splendid pencil sketch of Saint Teresa of Avila, done by Adele Bernero, occupies a prominent place. Contributors are Bette Lou Hohl, Suzanne Carroll, Virginia Franke, Margery Connor, Barbara Ann Brennan, Patricia Donegan, Dolores Riley, and Adele Bernero, besides the actual editorial board headed by Cathleen Soden, editor.

"Our Town" Proves Another Dramatic Club Attraction

Pulitzer Prize Play Scores Triumph With Admirable Directing and Acting

The cast included Suzanne Carroll, Madge Mitchell, Joan Canning, Cathleen Soden, Barbara Brennan, Patricia Miller, Dorothy Thater, Kathleen Flynn, Jean Jo Budinger, Adele Bernero and Patsy Budinger.

The production staff included Rose Marie Carroll, Margery Connor, Christianne Hauber, Lillian Miller, Alverna Skidmore, Frances Bernero, Marybeth Malsie, Virginia Gerhardt, Gloria Nigro, Betty Hiltz, Ruth Goodman, Dolores Riley and Mary Ellen Pendergast.

Promenading

The Junior-Senior Promenade is over, but the memories will linger on indefinitely. We, who were there, feel that it was a great success. Mission Hills Country Club was a perfect setting for the gala occasion. Smooth, spirited, liquid, and conga-like notes were begun promptly at nine, and were given with perfection throughout the evening by Bill Gregory's orchestra.

After eight dances intermission was called, and the beautifully gowned girls and their escorts drifted away from the dance floor towards the cool, tinkling punch bowl. Concluding this period of re-vitalizing, the traditional Grand March was held. And then again the dancing went on.

It was with Cinderella's reluctance that we finally departed at the stroke of twelve.

The chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. M. J. O'Donoghue, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Gerhardt, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Ladd, and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Hauber.

Patricia O'Donoghue.

Lady of the Evening

La Rue Kemp in a glamorous gown of brown and gold lace with gold sequins appliqued on the huge tiered skirt. In her hair, she had a cluster of gold sequin grapes. Later she led the "Conga" chain with her Latin gentleman, whose name we were about to learn how to pronounce, when in walked Martha Dwyer. Martha, in a lavender taffeta dress, claimed that it was quite vogue to be a wee bit late.

Lovely to Look At

Ann Branand, looking like the cover of Harper's Bazaar, had on a pink jersey dress and a matching jacket of wool jersey, edged in white angora. A fluffy pink ostrich feather nestled in her hair.

White Is Right

Because Helen Dwyer had on a white marquisette dress, a striking contrast with her dark hair. Mary Kay Olson, the Junior class president, wore an embroidered organdy.

"Mighty Like a Rose"

Were Jean Aylward in a crisp pink pique formal with inserted net neckline, and Patsy Spurrier in a rose moire taffeta with two pert bows on the shoulders.

Dinner at Seven

Our charming hostess, Virginia Scherrer, met us at the door in a spic-span white eyelet batiste . . . Kay O'Connor in a white quilted cape over a flowered spring gown . . . Lois Romer was there looking too sophisticated for words in a green and white jersey dinner dress . . . Jo Blackburn had on an unusual flowered print.

"We Were Dancing"

Mabel Prichard's yellow net skirt topped by floral print blouse, billowed smoothly across the dance floor. Betty Krenzer reversed the combination in a gay printed skirt with simple white pique bodice.

Margaret Fitzsimmons in bouffant yellow resembled a bright marigold. Pat Schild's blond loveliness was accented by yards and yards of lavender taffeta.

"Sweeter Than the Sweetest"

Barbara Stout wearing a simply-cut eyelet pique dress and Mary Catherine Halpin in a torso-length dress of the same material looked like heralds of summer.

Mary Margaret Lonergan's white chiffon formal with lace basqued studded with rhinestones glittered brilliantly amidst the bevy of tuxedos.

"Hurrah for the Red, White, and Blue"

Jo Ann Hickey, chic in navy blue and white pique; Martha Linck added a novel note to her navy blue dotted swiss formal by sprinkling white butterflies over the skirt.

Petite Mary Oxler focused interest in a red-red jacket over a crimson skirt.

"Old-Fashioned Girl"

A quaint trend was set by Alice Musholt, her hair in old-fashioned ringlets which fell to her shoulders, her dress of pink organdie with dropped shoulders and to add a finishing touch, she wore long lace gloves.

CAPITAL to CAMPUS

ACP's Jay Richter Reports from Washington

Washington—(ACP)—The weatherman is likely to be a weatherwoman for the duration. Civil Service is looking for college women to fill vacancies at weather stations west of the Mississippi.

If you're interested, go to the weather station where you would like a job and ask for blanks. (Incidentally, some stations are still averse to hiring women—which is something you may want to know in advance.)

At least two years of college work is required, with emphasis on mathematics and physics. The salary is $135 a month—$120 or $105 if you are willing to take less. You'll have to take a written examination.

Reports filtering into the Capital from "the field" indicate that farmers generally are reacting favorably to the student farm-work plan of McNutt's Manpower Commission. The newly-created commission is going to enlist college and high school students to work on farms in areas where shortage of help threatens.

Of course, the Department of Agriculture here had already advised its field personnel to use students. And many students and farmers have been planning ahead of any Washington agency. For example, in Eastern truck gardening areas students and farmers have been working together more than two months.

The Manpower Commission will obtain students through Employment Service offices.

The Navy needs about 50 girls for technical and scientific aides. They'll take almost anyone who has had one or two years of chemistry or physics. The openings are in arsenals and ordnance plants at Dover, N. J.; Watertown, Mass.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Rock Island, Illinois; Cincinnati, Ohio; St. Louis, Missouri, and Birmingham, Alabama. The salary is about $1600.
